Examined by Mr. Brooke.

"The More Crooks the Better," Mutters the Counsellor.

A Remarkable Recital of Deadly Experiments on People.

The more crooks of this kind they bring here as witnesses against Dr. Meyer, the better I shall be satisfied." muttered Charles W. Brooke, as he eyed "Chicago Jack" Gardner, alias "Atkins," before resuming his cross-examination of that hollow-eyed, sunken-cheeked, sailow and jail-bird-voiced film-flam" operator this morning.

Gardner was in the Cook County Jail with Muller, Dr. Meyer, Brandt and readiness. Baum in 1890, and tells a startling tale of Dr. Meyer's confidences to him rearding a scheme to do away with Ludhas been a crook for years and is now will be ready to move at the first inabsent from Chicago to the cost of his bondsmen in a burgiary affair, testified that as early as 1851 Dr. Meyer had insured Brandt's life for $7,500 in the Equilable Insurance Company of Illinois, and was planning to kill him with nitro-giverine polson.

There was no suggestion of using Baum's name in that scheme, but Mrs. Meyer was to figure as Brandt's widow. She was to wear black and "play crying" at the insurance office. But Meyer had Gardner arrested for burglary, and that naturally ended their "palship."

"Chicago Jack" testified that by the direction of Dr. Meyer he and Brandt mixed nitro-glycerine with whiskey and experimented with it on "niggers and tramps" on the lake front in Chicago.

That it knocked the victims out.

"Did you ever try to find out what was the result of your experiments" Do you know whether it killed any of the "niggers and tramps?" asked Mr. Brooke.

"Yes, sir; I looked in the papers next"

The motormen being instructed to coey the orders of the Director of Police. At 3.30 o'clock a detail of police, under Capt. Gates, was sent to Newburg, where the large iron mills are located and where disorder was threatened. The Poles of that district held a meeting late last night and determined to make a raid on the wire mills to-day. The military were held in readiness to go to the aid of the police, should the force be inadequate to handle the mob. In the downtown districts and throughout the city generally quiet prevailed during the night and early morning. The foreigners who compose the disorder was threatened.

"Yes, sir: I looked in the papers next braing, but I didn't see any account morning, but I didn't see any account of their death." replied the man whose long sojourn in jails had made his voice sepulchral from long disuse.
"Did you look in the Morgue?"
"No. sir."

Mr. Brooke tried to find out who induced the crook to come to New York as a witness, but could get nothing more than hat a man saw him in the Indian Territory, and heard his statement, and asked him to come. He denied that anybody had ever taken a written statement from him.

"The Astor House."

"Who paid your expenses to come from the Indian Territory to New York, and who is paying your bill at the Astor House?"

hollow voice. "I have been here since April 22."

Mr. Brooke finally wormed out of Gardner it at the man who accompanied him to New York told him his name was Miller, but he "couldn't swear that was his name." Miller pays for his meals and drinks in town and takes him to places of amusement. Gardner denied that he had or was to receive any "bonus" for coming to New York. He was to be paid for his time, but couldn't tell how much his time was worth without an attorney.

was to be paid for his time, but couldn't tell how much his time was worth without an attorney.

Pressed to tell what induced him to come from the Indian Territory to New York to testify against Dr. Meyer, Gardner said he came in response to letters from John Wright and Mrs. Morey. Wright is a drummer out of employment, and Mrs. Morey he boarded with ten days in 1890.

Gardner said he had given into his brother Mike's hands for safe keeping a letter written to him by Dr. Meyer. He offered, with charming naivete, to read a copy of it to the jury, and when Brooke thundered at him he said shrinking;

Gardner denied that he had come to testify against Dr. Meyer under promise of a reward.

"I came as a respectable citizen to do my duty and to do the State a service," said Chicago Jack.

"H"mi Ye-es!" murmured the crossexaminer. "Did it ever occur to you that you might be doing the State some service by giving yourself up to the authorities of Chicago and relieving your bondsmen in that burglary affair?"

The guestion was available.

The question was excluded.
Juror Ascheim asked a question and the crook replied that he did not see Dr.

time the four conspirators were here and clearn of them being slowly polsoned to death.

Mattle Stichter, a young woman with a plain face, from Chicago, where she is a manufacturer of children's ciothing, came next to the witness stand. She testified that in 1891 she lived at 333 Centre street, Chicago, next door to Dr. Meyer; that she called for medical treatment; that his household included a man named Brandt and Mrs. Meyer in court, and said the two photographs in court, and said the two photographs in court, and said the two photographs in court, and said that Mr. Fink, of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, discovered her two or three months. Miss Stitcher said that Mr. Fink, of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, discovered her two or three weeks ago and induced her to come to New York to testify.

Her testimony was valuable only to show the marital relationship of Dr. and Mrs. Meyer, and their relations with Brandt.

Magge Greuter, a hairdresser, of 272 Mohawk street, Chicago, corroborated Miss Stichter.

Then she related tha her mother went to Europe in September, 1891, with Dr. and Mrs. Meyer, and that the latter to Europe in September, 1891, with Dr. and Mrs. Meyer, and that the latter to Europe in September, 1891, with Dr. and Mrs. Meyer, and that the latter to Europe in September, 1891, with Dr. free are 1,000 of the badges, which the Commissioners require a deposit of 35 for use in the insurance swindle and to play off Mrs. Meyer as Baum's widow on his parents in an effort to get money from the insurance swindle and to play off Mrs. Meyer as Baum's widow on his parents in an effort to get money from the insurance swindle and to play off Mrs. Meyer as Baum's widow on his parents in an effort to get money from the insurance with the surface with the surface with the surface of the Muller was brought in and the Chicage female hairdresser identified him as "Reinbold Klein," who came to her in April, 1892, withtwo letters from Mrs. Meyers, directing her to turn over the keys of the Doctor's house to him, as he bought the furniture. Klein, or Muller had a bill of sale of the furniture and took the goods away.

The witness identified a letter as one received from Dr. Meyer last Sunday evening at the Sturtevant House, where she is stapping. The lawyers for the defense were plainly troubled by flits. Dr. O'Sullivan engaged in a whispered talk with Dr. Meyer, His tone was remonstrative. Mr. Brooke bent over his papers and affected indifference, while Col. Fellows. Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Wellman examined the letter, which was in German.

Mr. McIntyre said he'h have it translated before reading its

Then London Apathy Helps the General Depression.

Europe was used against speculation at the Stock Exchange this morning, but there were also other unfavorable influences at work.

The snarl in which the Reading security holders find themselves portends serious trouble for them, as well as the property itself. It will take a long ime to unravel the many entangle nents brought on by the faulty adminstration of the affairs of the Company for a series of years. Reading, therefore, is a disturbing factor in the situation. The apathy of London also has a de pressing influence. Prices from that centre came 1-8 to 1-2 lower again this morning, and the market for Americans was repeated weak in tone. To cap all, the Rev. Mr. Patterson and His Followers Denounced in Court.

Central Park Buptist Church Troubles Reviewed in Detail.

Judge Gildersleeve, of the Supreme Court, to-day heard arguments on his order requiring Rev. C. Venton Patterson to show cause why the temporary injunction issued last Friday, restrain-ing him and his followers from holding ervices in the Central Park Baptist Church, 235 East Eighty-third street, should not be made permanent.

should not be made permanent.

The troubles betweet Pastor Patterson and some of the members of his flock have extended over considerable time and attracted much attention.

The opposition to Rev. Mr. Patterson is led by Messrs. Fraser and Spooner, Last week they secured from Justice McKeon in the Seventh District Court an order directing the pastor to vacate the church. Last Friday they obtained the temporary injunction mentioned.

Rev. Mr. Patterson was represented the property in the morning while her husband was absent. No one is positive of
